THE BANKS have a large amount of exchange to provide for daily, and wast sums of currency are imported to keep pace with the demand far money. When nales become as high as 4300 bales in a day, and 45,000 have been received here since September 1st, there is no small amount of money wanting to keep up the movement. Yesterday one bank received by noon, notice of 110,000 exchange to provide for. As fast as the money comes in for cotton sold it passes among the planters to bring more of the staple into the market. The rates of exchange are very firm, with a strong to idency in the taker's favor; porthern and eastern quote a discount of i buying, New Orleans 1; both sell at par. Gold made one of its samersets, fallog to 15th last Friday it was 117. Well ined New York papers say that the high price was artificially created and kept up by what is called "the gold clique." This is a great country, we are a great people, yet a dozen fellows in a clique make a football of our currency, and the vast values held by our me cantile community are kicked in the direct on the clique choose. This is a tyranny that ought to be resisted. Brokers here were offering only 114 for gold; they could not tell to where it might go down. Local a curities remained unchanged, except that fire and police scrip was less firm. A further lot of $500 gas stock was on the market; $5000 is now offering; the asking price is 96,

Gold opened in New York at 116, de-clined to 115], and closed at 115§ The New York Bulletin, of Wednesday, reports cotton working in favor of buyers "The stock here is still placed on thmarket with some caution, but more of it available than for some sittle time past, while the efferings to strive within even or eight days have increased considerably, are to be reached at some shading from ruling rates, and fail to at ract any great amount of attention. Exporters re-ported continued advices from abroad of a character to induce them to move cautiously, but russors were current, and on pretty good authority, that quite a number of ba'es had been purchased to-day by foreign operators. In futures Liverpool has been rather slock, and this, with the offering of a great many contract on southern account, has weakened the market. A decided influence, however, in favor of the lower rates, is the apparent termination of the October squeez-; and the absence of 'shorts' as x sous to cover, those remaining on the latter de of the market having been financially strong enough to weather the late raid, and stubbornly holding off, in hope and expectation that they will yet come Improvement of River Navigation. In the report of the chief of engineers submitted to the secretary of war last week, we find the following plan of operations for the coming season: "These 601 Bronsway, must necessarily be much restricted, owing to the very small appropriations bring $4.50 a dozen. Of this amount the Mississippi will get control of the very small appropriations of the very small appr and the Arkansas four months. Only two boats can be employed—the Macomb, which is already on duty in the Missouri, and will sutsequently be detached for the Arkansas river, and the Long, which will begin work in the Mississippi as soon as low water sets in. I must again call attention to the fact that the great importance of this work seems to have been entirely overlooked in recent appropriations. Considering the extent of the work and its necessarily eastly nature, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, which has for several years been the amount appropriated, is entirely inadequate. The direct benefit to navigation derived from the work of the snagboats is fully as great as any which can be accomplished, and it is moreover a concomitant of any plan of radical improvement which may be undertaken. But to make it a success requires more or less constant work, and the possession of boats and machinery as nearly perfect as possible. Our wooden boats with which the work was so successfully inaugurated are no longer in a condition to do efficient work. Their great draught of water entirely unfits them for work in the side streams, and they need, under any circumstances, more expensive repairs than their value as snagboats would justify. One of these boats could, however, be fitted up for wrecking purposes with much advantage. We have now only one boat which is at all up to the mark. This is the iron snagboat, J. N. Macomb, which was put into service last winter. This boat has fully justified the high expectations which were formed of her."

The Mary Bell. As will be seen by reference to Cap-tain J. T. Washington's "special no-tices" in another part of this issue, this immense fresh-water navigator and cotton carrier will be in port to-day to leave at four o'clock this evening. The whole world is invited to visit her during her stay here, and as a guide to those wishing to take in the great aquatic monster, we subjoin a few particulars of her proportions, etc.: The Mary Bell, which, be it remembered, was built expressly for the Memphis and New Orleans trade, is 325 feet in extreme length by 56 feet breadth of beam and 11 feet hold. Add to this a sheer of 6 feet from amidship fore and aft, and a guard 18 feet around; then some idea of the proportions of this gigantic vessel may be formed. There are 300 floors in the boat 5 by 15 inches, one main keelson 10 by 20 Inches, two blige keelsons 8 by 14 inches, four clamps, four pointers and fourteen floor streams. The bottom and knuckle plank are 5 inches thick, and from 50 to 70 feet long. In the construc-tion of this boat over a million feet of water-seasoned oak has been used, and 75,000 feet of Florida pine consumed in laying the main deck, besides a great quantity of other kinds of timber. For astenings over 100 tons of iron have been used, 13,000 drift bolts driven, besides nails innumerable. No one can look at this magnificent vessel without feeling impressed with its superior strength and safety. The tonnage is estimsted at 3800 tons, storage capacity 10,000 bales of cotton. Draft, aft 4 feet, forward 3 feet. Thus it will be seen two points of great interest have been attained; a light draft of water and great carrying capacity. The power of this immense craf-consists of 8 boilers 30 feet long by 42 inches in diameter, each containing 5 flues, and made from Otis patent homogeneous steel, by the house of Rohan Brothers. The same firm fur-boat is also supplied with several other small engines, such as doctor freighthoister, steam pump, etc. Her model, for a crait of such immense tonnage, is easy, and she will doubtless prove as speedy as she is perfect in every other respect. The cabin is certainly one of the most elegant ever constructed, and surrounded as it is by extensive promenades, strikes the beholder at once as the embodiment of luxury and comfort. The pantry, barber-shop, saloons, store-rooms and kitchen, are in keaping with the rest of the boat, while the "bureau," and colored cabin in the rear of the texas, are marvels of elegance. A special feature of the colored people's quarters is that no white person is allowed to enter them, thus guaranteeing to this class of passengers the same select privacy enjoyed by the whites. Captain J. Frank Hicks, her commander, has been a successful boatman for thirty years, and has commanded in the Memphis and New Orleans trade, the steamers John Simonds, Henry Von Phul, Magenta, Belle Lee, and others of less nots. Captain Aif, Grissom, chief clerk and part owner, is a young gentleman with a brilliant record. He has spent a dozen years on the river on the steamers

Rubicon, Belle St. Louis, Belle Lee Albert Pearce, etc. Mr. Grissom's assistant is Wm. Thomas, well known in the Memphis and New Orlenas trade. Frank Smith, a esterer of much reputa-tion, is the steward. J. Ed. Montgomery and Charles Pearce are pilots M. J. Hicks, chief engineer; John Britton, mate, and Jhon Streeter, car-penter. The total number of officers and crew of this immense steamer foot up over one hundred.

LATER. A dispatch received from St. Louis last night, says: "The Mary Belle, which has been aground between here which will bring her here about one o'clock this evening, if she meets with no trouble at Osceola.
